

WON'T YOU BE OUR GHOST? Wine isn't the only spirit to be found at the Inn

SONOMA VALLEY, CA October 2020 - It is said that ghosts haunt where they were happiest. Fairmont Sonoma Mission Inn & Spa welcomes guests past and present and tells the tales of guests who never want to leave.

When the evenings are still and the fog rolls in from the Bay, a hauntingly beautiful woman has been seen strolling the hallways of the Inn in period dress. Victoria, as she is fondly referred to by many of the Inn's tenured employees and whose family traces back to the founding fathers of Sonoma Valley, is said to have celebrated her wedding and many anniversaries at the resort.

The Inn originally dates back to the Native Americans, who were the first to discover the natural underground hot mineral waters. This site was considered a sacred healing ground and their 'sweathouse' stood near the spring for generations. For decades, guests have commented on the otherworldly presence at the Inn.

A frightfully handsome room in the original building is reportedly haunted by a ghost of an elderly man. Guests have for years noted a 'feeling' of not being alone in the room at night. You may catch something out of the corner of your eye – see something run down the hall and around the corner. Others have shared that they hear doors slamming in different areas of the first floor in the darkest of the night.

The hauntingly famous 'Round-Room' is perhaps one of the most haunted hotel rooms in California. Supposedly, it was in this room, where a guest of the hotel in the 1920s, was allegedly beheaded in the bathtub by a jealous lover. Since then, guests have reported paranormal activity in the room, including flickering lights, unexplained noises, shadowy figures, running water and more.

SONOMA'S SECRET GHOSTS AND LEGENDS

Did you know that Sonoma has been coined California's most haunted town? Or that the Sonoma Valley is rumored to have two secret underground military bases? Did you know that Sonoma is reportedly a hotspot for U.F.O. activity?

How about this one? The Blue Wing Inn, built by General Vallejo in 1840 as one of the first hotels in California, is located across from the northernmost California Mission in downtown Sonoma and is rumored to be one of the most haunted buildings in town. The property has a long and colorful history as a hostel, store, saloon, and apartments. Today it stands empty and closed to the public.

Around the corner from the Blue Wing Inn is the Sebastiani Theatre, a beautiful art deco cinema - a rare gem among old theaters. But reports cite the ghost of a teenager named Tilly mingles with guests in the lobby.

Up the hill from the Sonoma Plaza is the lovely Bartholomew Park Winery, which offers ghostly legends alongside its museum and tasting room. Bartholomew was not always a winery. Sonoma's Bartholomew Park Winery was once a part of Agoston Haraszthy's 1850's Buena Vista Winery. It also was once a women's prison, hospital and morgue. At least three ghosts supposedly haunt the winery's main building and basement. Employees at the winery have reported hearing voices singing hymns. A story also has circulated about an incarcerated woman who was allegedly found in the basement walls during a 1970s earthquake retrofit.1920's the building housed The State Farm for Delinquent Women. This was a prison for women of ill repute or those who were addicts, criminals or simply pregnant out of wedlock.
